

Higher Education Achievement Report

The Higher Education Achievement Report (HEAR) is designed to give undergraduate students a record of your academic and other achievements whilst studying at the University. It will replace the transcript for final year students, and sit alongside your degree certificate.

The format of the HEAR was developed nationally, with input from students and employers, and is intended to allow you to capture and record a rich picture of your time at the University. You can then use the HEAR to help build a CV or application, or allow an employer to access it online. It doesn't replace CVs or applications, and you still need to ensure you follow the criteria that any specific job application may require.

The HEAR is divided into sections which give information about you, the qualification you have achieved, your academic results, additional activities that you have engaged with, and information on the UK higher education system.

The HEAR will be issued to all students graduating from an undergraduate programme through an online service called GradIntel. You will need to register with GradIntel to be able to view your HEAR and share it with employers. The GradIntel service also offers you other opportunities to enhance your employability skills and record them, and to match you to employer vacancies.

If you have any further HEAR related queries, please try the Frequently Asked Questions to see if the answer is there. If not, contact us and we will answer it (and add it to the FAQ if it is a common question).
